Journal of East Asian Studies 11 (2011), 169–170

The Contributors

A. Cooper Drury is associate professor of political science at the University of Missouri and editor in chief of Foreign Policy Analysis. His research and teaching focus broadly on foreign policy and international political economy. He has published extensively on the use and consequences of economic sanctions.

Shintaro Hamanaka is an economist at the Office of Regional Economic Integration of the Asian Development Bank and an honorary research fellow at the White Rose East Asia Centre in the UK. His research interests include political economy of regionalism, regional economic architecture in Asia, and free trade agreements, paticularly regional services agreements. He is the author of Asian Regionalism and Japan: Politics of Membership in Regional Diplomatic, Financial and Trade Groups (2009).

Patrick James is professor of international relations and director of the Center for International Studies at the University of Southern California. He is the author or editor of eighteen books and more than 100 other academic publications. James was honored as the Distinguished Scholar in Ethnicity, Nationalism, and Migration by the International Studies Association at its annual meeting in 2010.

Hyung Je Jo is professor of sociology at the University of Ulsan, South Korea, and was a visiting scholar at the Graduate School of International Relations and Pacific Studies, University of California, San Diego. His research centers on the empirical study and theorization of the Korean auto industry. He is the author of Hyundai Way: Is a Korean Production System Possible? (2005).

Yitan Li is assistant professor of political science at Seattle University. His research focuses on international relations, foreign policy analysis, international conflict and security, international political economy, comparative politics, and Chinese and East Asian politics. He has published recently in Asian Affairs, Canadian Journal of Political Science, Foreign Policy Analysis, International Studies Perspectives, Nationalism and Ethnic Politics, and Political Research Quarterly.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1598240800007037 Published online by Cambridge University Press

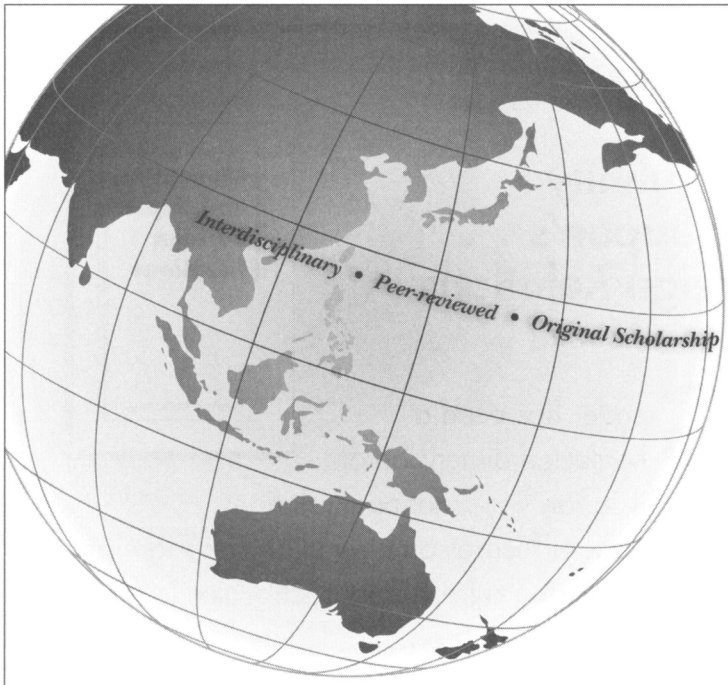

Marie-Eve Reny is a PhD candidate in the Department of Political Science at the University of Toronto and a research fellow at the Munk School of Global Affairs. Her work centers on state-society relations, contentious politics, and the politics of religion in mainland China. She has published in Ethnic and Racial Studies.

James C. Schopf received a PhD in political science from the University of California, San Diego. His research concerns the effects of democratization on corruption, and he has specialized in the politics of Korea, where he lived and worked for ten years. He was also among the first to use the Korean Freedom of Information Act to gather sealed data for his dissertation. His articles have appeared in Asian Survey, Journal of East Asian Studies, and Pacific Review.

Jonathan Sullivan is Research Councils UK (RCUK) Fellow for China, Globalization and Civil Society at the University of Nottingham. His work covers various aspects of political competition and communication in China and Taiwan and has appeared in the China Quarterly, Journal of Contemporary China, Pacific Review, and other journals. He is currently preparing a book on elections in Taiwan.

Jong-Sung You is assistant professor and associate director of the Korea-Pacific Program at the Graduate School of International Relations and Pacific Studies, University of California, San Diego. He was recently a visiting scholar at the Asiatic Research Institute, Korea University, Seoul. His research centers on the comparative political economy of corruption and development, with a regional focus on Korea and East Asia.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1598240800007037 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Edited by Hyung-Gu Lynn

Independently published since 1928

Pacific Affairs

An International Review of Asia and the Pacific

There are few names among academic journals focused on Asia as rich in history and as evocative as Pacific Affairs. We explore contemporary issues that face a complex and interdependent Asia. Our international editorial board ensures articles are edited to the highest standard. Pacific Affairs' book reviews are a must for any busy scholar or librarian to keep abreast of the latest literature in the field. Please see our website for further details.

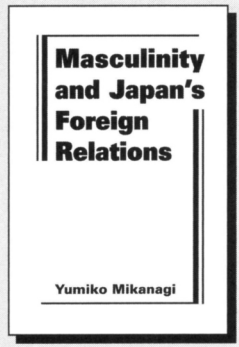

www.pacificaffairs.ubc.ca

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1598240800007037 Published online by Cambridge University Press

FIRSTFORUMPRESS
A Division of Lynne Rienner Publishers, Inc.

Masculinity and Japan's Foreign Relations

YUMIKO MIKANAGI

"Gender has been a neglected dimension of the study of Japan's international relations. Yumiko Mikanagi focuses on masculinity and foreign relations, employing a fresh approach which is sure to stimulate much discussion and debate."

—Vera Mackie, University of Wollongong

Transformations in both Japan's domestic culture and its foreign relations in the last two decades have led to, among other outcomes, a shift to a more militarized defense policy. Yumiko Mikanagi explores an intriguing aspect of this shift: changes in what is considered masculine in contemporary Japanese society.

Tracing the alternations between dominant "warrior" and "literati" conceptions of masculinity from the nineteenth century to the present, Mikanagi reveals parallels in Japan's foreign policy and offers new insights into the country's recent defense policy decisions.

February 2011/ca. 140 pages hc $55

1800 30th Street • Boulder, CO 80301 • Tel: 303-444-6684 • Fax: 303-444-0824
www.firstforumpress.com

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1598240800007037 Published online by Cambridge University Press

LYNNE RIENNER PUBLISHERS

North Korea:
Development, Human Rights, and Democracy

North Korea Modernization Research Group

How can members of the international donor community help to quickly improve the overall welfare of the North Korean people? What kind of sustainable development plan will enhance the long-term human rights situation in North Korea? Will gains in development and human rights trigger political liberalization? The authors of this volume discuss these challenges and suggest concrete ideas to promote North Korea's development, human rights, and democracy through international cooperation.

Contents: Introduction. North Korea's Current Challenges. Politics. Military. Economy. Society. The International Community's Engagement with North Korea. Modernization and Democracy. North Korean Human Rights, Refugees, and Media. Economic Development, Participation, and Market Reform. Conclusion. North Korea's Road to Modernization. Appendixes.

2011/132 pages pb $19.95

Explorations in Korean Studies
Distributed for the Institute for Far Eastern Studies, Kyungnam University

CELEBRATING 27 YEARS OF INDEPENDENT PUBLISHING
1800 30th Street • Boulder, CO 80301 • Tel: 303-444-6684 • Fax: 303-444-0824
www.rienner.com

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1598240800007037 Published online by Cambridge University Press

"Publishes the best of Asian and Western scholars as they grapple with the most pressing problems of the day." —PETER VAN NESS, Australian National University

ASIAN PERSPECTIVE

Melvin Gurtov, editor

Asian Perspective presents critical analysis of the global, regional, and transnational issues affecting Northeast Asia. The journal brings cogent, thought-provoking examination of the significant developments in Asia and the world and promotes a healthy exchange of ideas among scholars, students, and policymakers.

E-access with every subscription!

Volume 35, 2011 (4 issues) ISSN 0258-9184

- Individuals: $62
- Students: $32
- Institutions: $120 (Base Rate)

For subscriptions outside the US please add $18/year for postage.

- Listed in the Social Sciences Citation Index
- Published in association with the Institute for Far Eastern Studies, Kyungnam University, and the Hatfield School of Government, Portland State University

LYNNE RIENNER PUBLISHERS

1800 30th St., Suite 314, Boulder, CO 80301 • Tel: 303-444-6684 • Fax: 303-444-0824

Order online at www.rienner.com/AsianPerspective

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1598240800007037 Published online by Cambridge University Press