Acknowledgments

I thank the following people who provided valuable feedback on prior versions of this manuscript: Anna Maria Konewka, Alexandra Flynn, Ben Ewing, Ben McJunkin, Christopher Essert, Ekow Yankah, Evan Fox-Decent, Hamish Stewart, Malcolm Thorburn, Marie-Eve Sylvestre, Marie-France Fortin, Peter Oliver, Sylvia Rich, Vanessa MacDonnell, and Vincent Chiao. I also thank the following colleagues who provided helpful advice and guidance on my book proposal: Hanoch Dagan, Jason Weinrib, Patrick Dumberry, and Paul Daly. I thank the following law students for their excellent research assistance: Alexandre Faubert Charlebois, Jean-François Bélanger, Maya Vacante, and Nicholas Burrell. I thank the following friends and colleagues who helped me refine my arguments and work through difficult ideas throughout the years: Edward Béchard-Torres, Michelle Biddulph, Olga Redko, and William Colish. I thank the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada for their generous funding that supported my doctoral research. Lastly, I thank the following institutions and research centers for their support while I drafted and refined this manuscript: Arizona State University's Academy for Justice and the Center for Constitutional Design at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, New York University's Center for Human Rights and Global Justice, The Buchmann Faculty of Law at Tel Aviv University, the Public Law Centre at the University of Ottawa, and the University of Toronto. All mistakes are my own.

This book was adapted from my doctoral dissertation and reproduces some of its arguments, sentences, and footnotes. Additionally, certain arguments advanced in this book are based on academic articles that I published previously and that contain similar sentences, phrasing, and footnotes. The arguments advanced in Chapters 3, 4, and 5 draw largely on my previously published articles entitled: "How and Why Homeless People Are Regulated Differently" (2018) 42 Queen's Law Journal 297 and "Freedom and Access to Housing: Three Conceptions" (2018) 35 Windsor Yearbook of Access to Justice 226. The arguments advanced in Chapter 6 draw largely on my previously published article entitled: "Rethinking Homeless People's Punishments" (2019) 22 New Criminal Law Review 73. Lastly, the arguments advanced in Chapter 8 draw largely on my previously published article entitled: "Homeless Encampments: A Philosophical Justification" (2022) 36 Journal of Law and Social Policy 97.
