Acknowledgements

I have immensely enjoyed writing this book, so it is a real pleasure to acknowledge the debts of gratitude which I have contracted in the process. First of all, I am deeply grateful to Erkki Kouri whose help, especially in the later stages of the project, has been most invaluable. I owe much to his academic advice and personal support. I should also like to thank Pekka Suvanto and Matti Viikari. Pekka Suvanto guided my early tentative ventures into the field of historical scholarship; Matti Viikari has always been an uncompromising but kind reader of my writings.

My greatest debt is to Quentin Skinner. He first took interest in my writings when they were hardly worthy of critical reaction and has found the time to read them ever since. He originally suggested the topic of this book and has read and commented on its several earlier versions. His ever-instructive judgement and unfailing kindness have been a constant support and inspiration.

I am also indebted to Stuart Clark and Johann Sommerville for their early words of encouragement, to David Armitage and Brian Vickers for their later help and to Pirkko Haapanen for numerous discussions on republicanism. Thanks also go to John Calton, who corrected the language of the Introduction, Epilogue and Chapter 3. As for the rest of the work, I profited immensely from the help of my friends, Anne Finell, Walter Johnson and, above all, Ad Putter.

Margaret Grover has been my indefatigable guide as to the intricacies of 'Englishness'. Of the numerous friends with whom I have shared the enjoyment of scholarship, it would be churlish of me not to mention Anne Finell, Walter Johnson, M. Grazia Lolla, Ville Lukkarinen, Eero Palmujoki, Ad Putter, Ilkka Teerijoki and Jukka Vuori.

I am grateful to the Consistory of Helsinki University for granting me the Herman Rosenberg Travel Grant. The Academy of Finland made it possible for me to study at Cambridge University. The timely financial support of the Emil Aaltonen Foundation and especially that of Hämäläisosakunta enabled me to complete the manuscript. A part of Chapter 2 has appeared in The History of Political Thought and another version of Chapter 4 in The Historical Journal.

I should not have embarked on a project such as this without the moral support of Soili Paananen, much less carried it out without her and Frans's stalwart encouragement.
