Outstanding books
from The University of Chicago Press

The Supreme Court Review, 1968

Edited by Philip B. Kurland

CONTENTS: Free Speech and Symbolic Conduct: The Draft-Card Burning Cases, Dean Alfange, Jr.—Judicial Review of Agency Decisions: The Labor Board and the Court, Ralph K. Winter, Jr.—Some Marginal Notes on TMT Trailer Reorganization: The New Math? Walter J. Blum—Jones v. Mayer: Clio, Bemused and Confused Muse, Gerhard Casper—Katz v. United States: The Limits of the Fourth Amendment, Edmund W. Kitch—From Ginzburg to Ginsberg: The Unhurried Children's Hour in Obscenity Litigation, Samuel Krislov—Toward a Concept of Constitutional Duty, Arthur S. Miller.

1968 LC:60-14353 246 pages, $12.75

Obscenity and Public Morality

Censorship in a Liberal Society

Harry M. Clor

The purpose of Mr. Clor's study is threefold: to consider the problem of obscenity in the light of the broad issues of political philosophy; to explore the dilemmas encountered by the law when it seeks to define public morality in a liberal democracy and in a pluralistic society; and to contribute to the development of a philosophy of censorship and a definition of obscenity which will do justice to the public interests in morality, in freedom of expression and in literary values.

1969 LC:69-16772 315 pages, $9.50

Politics, Personality, and Social Science in the Twentieth Century

Essays in Honor of Harold D. Lasswell

Edited by Arnold A. Rogow

Harold Lasswell, one of America's most distinguished political scientists, is a man whose work has had enormous impact both in the United States and abroad not only upon his own field but those of sociology, psychology, economics, law, and anthropology as well. This collection of essays is the first full-scale effort to deal with his voluminous writings and explore his at once charming and baffling personality, which is perhaps inseparable from the inventiveness, unconventionality, and unusual scope of his work.

1969 LC:76-75812 360 pages, $11.00

Propaganda and Promotional Activities

An Annotated Bibliography

Harold D. Lasswell, Ralph D. Casey, and Bruce Lannes Smith
With a New Introduction by Harold D. Lasswell

Originally published in 1935, this was a standard reference for many years. The present edition includes all the original material as well as a new Introduction by Lasswell, discussing increasingly sophisticated developments in the study and management of communication over the past thirty years—television debates, "hidden persuaders," use of drugs and hypnosis in psychiatric treatment of mental disorders, tactics of "brainwashing," and other aspects of propaganda in modern societies.

1969 LC:75-77979 450 pages, $10.00

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0023921600026761 Published online by Cambridge University Press

The Search for an Abortionist

Nancy Howell Lee

How is the demand for abortion met in American society? What are the social-structural connections that allow the buyers and sellers of this illegal service to locate and deal with each other, yet keep the practice of abortion almost invisible to the society as a whole? The Search for an Abortionist is the first detailed empirical study of the whole range of factors—psychological, social, medical, financial, and legal—which affect the woman who seeks to end an unwanted pregnancy.

1969 LC:74-75135 200 pages, $7.50

The Child Savers

The Invention of Delinquency

Anthony M. Platt

Contemporary programs of delinquency control in the United States can be traced back to the efforts of the "child savers"—social reformers of the late nineteenth century who, viewing themselves as humanitarians and altruists, helped to create special judicial and correctional institutions for the labeling and management of "troublesome" youth. This study, a chronicle of the child-saving movement and the juvenile court, revises many popular conceptions about the benign character of both.

1969 LC:69-14827 272 pages, $8.50

Public Controls for Nonpublic Schools

Edited and with an Introduction by Donald A. Erickson

This book presents the first comprehensive examination of the legal, educational, social, and ethical issues involved in state regulation of nonpublic schools. Differing viewpoints are represented in papers by Governor Harold E. Hughes (Iowa), historian Franklin H. Littell, anthropologist Jules Henry, State Commissioner William Sanders (Connecticut), and William B. Ball, counsel for the National Committee for Amish Religious Freedom. Other papers explore the constitutional framework for public control of nonpublic schools.

1969 LC:68-55148 256 pages, $8.50

Rich Schools, Poor Schools

The Promise of Equal Educational Opportunity

Arthur E. Wise

Recent history has uncovered dramatic and disturbing differences in educational opportunity in the United States. Wise proposes that such differences deny the citizens of a state the equal protection of its laws in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. The Equal Protection Clause may therefore be used to compel the states to provide all children with the same educational opportunities regardless of the location or income of their communities.

1969 LC:68-54485 230 pages, $9.00

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS, CHICAGO 60637

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0023921600026761 Published online by Cambridge University Press

LAW and the BALANCE of POWER

—The Automobile Manufacturers and Their Dealers

Stewart Macaulay

This book is a fascinating account of the automobile dealers' long struggle to alter the balance of power between themselves and the large manufacturing corporations. Macaulay's description of the dealers' attempts to find a legal remedy for what they consider unfair practices of the manufacturers shows the part that the legal system plays in implementing, regulating, and hindering economic relationships.

This is a book for anyone interested in law as part of the living process of the society. As such, it is a book for the imaginative practicing lawyer and the realistic scholar—not just scholars of law, but also those interested in the roles of the market and the large corporation. It advances our understanding of the ways in which informal procedures can develop as a result of pressure for changes in the formal rules.

6 x 9 224 pages 1966 $5.00

ADMINISTRATIVE JUSTICE

—Advocacy and Change in Government Agencies

Philippe Nonet

This volume is a case study of the interrelationships of law, politics, and administration. It traces the progressive transformation of the California Industrial Accident Commission from a welfare agency with broad discretion in making and interpreting its own policies into a relatively passive arbitrator of disputes over industrial accident claims.

Dr. Nonet uses the case to explore issues in sociological jurisprudence. He examines the effects of the elaboration of legal rules and doctrines, the significance of the procedural aspects of law, and the interplay of legal process and institutional change. This study provides a basis for interpretive generalizations about the relationship of law to organizational and administrative change.

6 x 9 274 pages 1969 $8.00

RUSSELL SAGE FOUNDATION

230 Park Avenue — New York, N. Y. 10017

Please mention LAW & SOCIETY REVIEW when writing to Advertisers

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0023921600026761 Published online by Cambridge University Press