Contributors

Seumas Miller is Foundation Professor of Philosophy at Charles Sturt University, Australia, and Professorial Research Fellow at the Centre for Applied Philosophy and Public Ethics (CAPPE; an Australian Research Council Special Research Centre) and at 3TU Centre for Ethics and Technology at Delft University of Technology. He was Foundation Director of CAPPE from 2000 to 2007. His extensive publications include writings on social action and institutions, terrorism, business ethics, and police ethics. He is the author most recently of The Moral Foundations of Social Institutions (2009) and of several forthcoming works, including The Ethics of Dual Use Science and Technology and Institutional Corruption: A Study in Applied Philosophy.
semiller@csu.edu.au

Jonathan Pickering is a PhD candidate in Philosophy at the Australian National University, where his thesis is on fairness in global climate change finance. Jonathan has undergraduate degrees in Arts and Law from the University of Sydney and a master of science in Development Studies from the London School of Economics and Political Science. Between 2003 and 2009 he worked at AusAID, the Australian government's international development assistance program.
Jonathan.Pickering@anu.edu.au

David Schlosberg is Professor of Environmental Politics in the Department of Government and International Relations at the University of Sydney and Director of the Sydney Network on Climate Change and Society. His work focuses primarily on environmental political thought, environmental justice, climate change and adaptation, and the theory and practice of environmental movements. Professor Schlosberg is a coeditor of The Oxford Handbook of Climate Change and Society (2011), the author of Defining Environmental Justice (2007), and the coauthor of the forthcoming The Climate-Challenged Society.
david.schlosberg@sydney.edu.au

Steve Vanderheiden is Associate Professor of Political Science and Environmental Studies at the University of Colorado at Boulder and Professorial Fellow with the Centre for Applied Philosophy and Public Ethics at Charles Sturt University in Canberra, Australia. He is the author of Atmospheric Justice: A Political Theory of Climate Change (2008) and is currently completing a book entitled Doing Our Bit: Individual Responsibility for Climate Change.
Steven.Vanderheiden@Colorado.EDU

Oran Young is Research Professor of Environmental Policy and Institutions at the Bren School of Environmental Science and Management at the University of California, Santa Barbara. In addition to his theoretical work on environmental governance, he has long engaged in applied work on the polar regions, the oceans, and climate change.

Ethics & International Affairs, 26, no. 4 (2012), pp. 405–406.
© 2012 Carnegie Council for Ethics in International Affairs doi:10.1017/S0892679412000573

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0892679412000573 Published online by Cambridge University Press

He has followed Arctic affairs since the 1970s and writes regularly on the policy implications of the transformative changes now occurring in the Arctic. His new book is entitled On Environmental Governance: Sustainability, Efficiency, and Equity (2012).

young@bren.ucsb.edu

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0892679412000573 Published online by Cambridge University Press