Dr. Flemming.

Dr. Carl Friedrich Flemming, Privy Medical Councillor, Hon. President of the Society of German Medical Psychologists, formerly Director of the Sachsenberg Asylum, Mecklenburg, died Jan. 27, 1880, aged 81, of apoplexy.

"He was one of the most eminent medical psychologists, a man of high scientific position, a thoroughly accomplished scholar, and at the same time a most amiable colleague.

"In friendly union with the veterans of psychiatry who had preceded him, he has, by speech and pen, most powerfully promoted the development of our science and the amelioration of the treatment of our patients, while he has helped to smooth the path on which we younger men proceed.

"To the end of his remarkably useful life he retained the most lively interest in psychiatry. His life, as a man and a colleague, has won for him all our hearts, and in profound mourning for his decease we lay upon his silent grave the well-merited laurel wreath."

So writes the Editor of Der Irrenfreund. We lay ours also on the grave of our colleague, the late editor of the Zeitschrift für Psychiatrie, and an honorary member of our Association.
