Notes on Contributors

AZILLE COETZEE is a postdoctoral researcher at the South African Research Chair for Gender Politics, Stellenbosch University, South Africa. She recently completed a PhD (at the Vrije University of Amsterdam and Stellenbosch University, South Africa) in which she explored African feminist thought as a decolonizing force, in dialogue with European feminist philosophy. Her research interests include feminist philosophy, African philosophy, and decolonization. (azille.coetzee@gmail.com)

FELECIA COMMODORE is Assistant Professor of Higher Education in the Darden College of Education and Professional Studies at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, VA. Commodore's research focus area is leadership, governance, and administrative practices with a particular focus on HBCUs and MSIs. Her research interests also lie in how leadership is exercised, constructed, and viewed in various communities, and the relationship of Black women and leadership. She is the lead author of Black Women College Students: A Guide to Success in Higher Education. She earned her PhD in higher education from the University of Pennsylvania's Graduate School of Education. (fcommodo@odu.edu)

JOHANNA HEIL is Assistant Professor (Wissenschaftliche Mitarbeiterin) in the Department of English and American Studies at Philipps-Universität Marburg, Germany, and Associate Editor of Amerikastudien/American Studies. Among her publications are her monograph Walking the Möbius Strip: An Inquiry into Knowing in Richard Powers's Fiction (Universitätsverlag Winter, 2016), the co-edited collection Communicating Disease: Cultural Representations of American Medicine (Universitätsverlag Winter, 2013), and articles in the fields of American literature, cultural theory, and dance studies. She is currently working on her second book, tentatively titled "Becoming-Body: Freedom and Technologies of the Self in American Modern Dance." (johanna.heil@uni-marburg.de)

KATRINA HUTCHISON is Research Fellow in the Department of Philosophy at Macquarie University, and an associate investigator in ethics, policy, and public engagement at the Australian Research Council Centre of Excellence for Electromaterials Science. Her research focuses on topics in bioethics, moral psychology, and feminist philosophy. In addition to journal articles and book chapters on these topics, she is co-editor (with Fiona Jenkins) of Women in Philosophy: What Needs to Change?

Hypatia vol. 34, no. 3 (Summer 2019) © by Hypatia, Inc.

https://doi.org/10.1111/hypa.12493 Published online by Cambridge University Press

(Oxford University Press, 2013) and (with Catriona Mackenzie and Marina Oshana) of Social Dimensions of Moral Responsibility (Oxford University Press, 2018). (katrina.hutchison@mq.edu.au)

ROCKNEY JACOBSEN teaches philosophy at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ontario. He has published papers on Wittgenstein, self-knowledge, metaethics, and the nature of sexual desire, and he co-edited (with Christine Koggel) Our Faithfulness to the Past, a collection of Sue Campbell's essays on the ethics and politics of memory. His philosophical work is concerned primarily with intersections between the philosophy of mind and the philosophy of language, and with deflationary themes in the history of philosophy. (rjacobsen@wlu.ca)

CORINNE LAJOIE is a PhD student in philosophy and women's, gender, and sexuality studies at The Pennsylvania State University. She is interested in the intersections between critical phenomenology, disability and mad studies, and feminist philosophy. (corinne.laj@gmail.com)

LAURIE E. NARANCH is Associate Professor of Political Science and Director of the Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program at Siena College, Loudonville, NY. She works in the areas of democratic theory, feminist theory, critical theory, craft, narrative, and aesthetics. She has published in edited collections on representation and popular culture and in philosophy journals such as differences. She is currently at work on the philosophy and politics of craft textiles in Guatemala and the southern United States as well as on a book on the aging body and political theory. (lnaranch@siena.edu)

THOMAS E. RANDALL, PhD is a Research Specialist at Info-Tech Research Group. He is interested in feminist philosophy and theories of justice, especially regarding care ethics. His recent publications can be found in: Res Publica, Feminist Philosophy Quarterly, and Between the Species. (trandal3@uwo.ca)

STEVEN STEYL is a PhD candidate at the University of Notre Dame, Fremantle, Australia. His research interests lie primarily in virtue ethics, ethics of care, and applied ethics. (stevensteyl@hotmail.com)

https://doi.org/10.1111/hypa.12493 Published online by Cambridge University Press