Figures

1.1 Average vote shares of left parties in national elections in Europe, 1960–2020 page 7
1.2 Average vote shares of left parties in national elections in Europe, by region, 1960–2020 9
1.3 Causal temporalities in the trajectory of social democratic parties 12
1.4 Structural occupational change in labor markets 32
1.5 Ideal-typical programmatic strategies in the political space 47
1.6 Programmatic positions of European parties on the economic and GAL-TAN dimensions 48
1.7 Programmatic positions of European parties on the economic and immigration dimensions 49
1.8 Development of the occupational knowledge economy: service sector employees with tertiary education as a share of total service sector employment 55
1.9 Total expenditures on consumption and investment and weight of spending on investment in total expenditure 57
1.10 Development of electoral shares in national elections for different party families over time, by regions (Continental, Nordic, Southern, and Anglo-Saxon European countries) 60
1.11 Left–right self-positioning and policy preferences on the two dimensions of political competition 61
2.1 Knowledge economy index 79
2.2 Urban and rural areas 80
2.3 Voting in the early 1980s and 2010s 91
2.4 Party family vote share by urban type 93
2.5 Regional patterns of competition, post 2010 94
2.6 Mobilization in the 1980s 96
2.7 Historic mobilization and regional type 98
2.A1 Regional patterns of competition, post 2010 100

Downloaded from https://www.cambridge.org/core. UNIVERSIDAD AUTONOMA METROPOLITANA, on 15 Nov 2026 at 11:32:28, subject to the Cambridge Core terms of use, available at https://www.cambridge.org/core/terms. https://doi.org/10.1017/9781009496810

3.1 Vote shares of social democratic parties in Western Europe 103
3.2 Vote switching from social democratic parties conditional on LR ideology 109
3.3 Vote switching from social democratic parties conditional on education 110
3.4 Vote switching from social democratic parties conditional on union membership 111
3.5 Vote switching from social democratic to other parties 112
3.6 Vote switching from social democratic to other parties, conditional on education 113
3.7 Vote switching between social democratic and other parties 115
3.8 Determinants of vote choice between SD and MR 117
3.9 Determinants of vote choice between SD and Green 118
4.1 Composition of electorates of party families by respondents and parental class 129
4.2 AMEs of respondents and parental class on support for party families 131
4.3 AMEs of parental class on support for party families, across geographical regions 132
4.4 AMEs of parental class on support for party families, across generations, for Northwestern Europe 134
4.5 Average predicted levels of support for party families by patterns of intergenerational mobility for Northwestern Europe 136
4.6 Average predicted levels of support for party families by patterns of intergenerational mobility among Gen X or Millennial respondents for Northwestern Europe 137
5.1 Transition away from Social Democrats, across entire lifespan 151
5.2 Transition away from SP, across elections 153
5.3 Transition away from Labour, across elections 154
5.4 Transition away from the SPD, across elections 155
5.5 The threat of AfD, a new party entry from the right 157
5.6 Who switches away from Social Democrats to any other party? 159
5.7 Who switches to whom? 160
6.1 Social democratic electoral potential and mobilization in ten European countries, 2000s and 2010s 173
6.2 Electoral potential and mobilization for different party families in ten European countries, 2000s and 2010s 175

Downloaded from https://www.cambridge.org/core. UNIVERSIDAD AUTONOMA METROPOLITANA, on 15 Nov 2026 at 11:32:28, subject to the Cambridge Core terms of use, available at https://www.cambridge.org/core/terms. https://doi.org/10.1017/9781009496810

6.3 Inward and outward overlaps by education, Nordic and Continental Europe 178
6.4 Inward and outward overlaps by education, Southern Europe 181
6.5 Inward and outward overlaps as a share of the overall electorate, comparison of magnitudes 183
6.A1 Inward and outward overlaps by subjective class, Continental and Nordic Europe 188
6.A2 Inward and outward overlaps by subjective class, Southern Europe 189
6.A3 Average voting propensities among overlapping voters 190
7.1 Voter movements 203
7.2 Attitudinal correlates of vote switching by party family: determinants of switching out and into Social Democracy 204
7.3 Voter movements, low-education/low-income group 207
7.4 Attitudinal correlates of party family switching out of Social Democracy by select education-income groups 209
8.1 Changes in the class composition of trade union membership 223
8.2 Changes in voting patterns among union members 225
8.3 Predicted probabilities of policy support on three dimensions 232
8.4 Predicted probabilities of policy support among unionized voters 235
8.5 Standpatters' and switchers' policy preference stances on three dimensions 240
9.1 Support for four social democratic programmatic strategies in the entire electorate 260
9.2 Support for four social democratic programmatic strategies among the potential social democratic electorate 261
9.3 Support for four social democratic programmatic strategies by left–right self-positioning 263
9.4 Support for four social democratic programmatic strategies by position on the economic dimension 264
9.5 Support for four social democratic programmatic strategies by position on the cultural dimension 265
9.6 Social Democrats vs. Green Left: predicted probabilities of choosing the social democratic party over the green and left-libertarian option by attitude 268
9.7 Social Democrats vs. Radical Left: predicted probabilities of choosing the social democratic party over the radical left option by attitude 269

Downloaded from https://www.cambridge.org/core. UNIVERSIDAD AUTONOMA METROPOLITANA, on 15 Nov 2026 at 11:32:28, subject to the Cambridge Core terms of use, available at https://www.cambridge.org/core/terms. https://doi.org/10.1017/9781009496810

9.8 Social Democrats vs. Moderate Right: predicted probabilities of choosing the social democratic party over the moderate right option by sociocultural attitude 270
9.9 Social Democrats vs. Radical Right: predicted probabilities of choosing the social democratic party over the radical right option by attitude 271
9.10 Support for different social democratic programmatic strategies by left–right self-positioning, Austria, Switzerland, and Sweden 272
9.11 Support for different social democratic programmatic strategies by left–right self-positioning, Germany, Spain, and Denmark 273
10.1 Distribution of current vote choices of voters who had chosen major left parties at $t - 1$ 289
10.2 Distribution of movements between prior and current election, all major left parties in the data 290
10.3 Movement from $t - 1$ to t on the economic left–right scale based on the Comparative Manifesto Project for major left parties 294
10.4 Movement from $t - 1$ to t on the cultural liberal–conservative scale based on the Comparative Manifesto Project for major left parties 295
10.5 Comparing movements from $t - 1$ to t, economic left–right and cultural liberal–conservative scales 296
10.6 Moderation in prior cycle and subsequent vote choice of survey respondents who had voted for major left parties in the prior cycle 298
11.1 Parties' positions relative to mean of the scale and their electoral payoff 327
11.2 Parties' positions relative to ML (Social Democracy) and ML's vote share 331
12.1 Predicted vote share of social democratic parties by level of fiscal consolidation and incumbency status 352
12.2 Predicted vote share of social democratic parties by level of spending- and revenue-based consolidations and incumbency status 353
12.3 Predicted vote share of social democratic parties by level of consolidation in different areas and incumbency status 356
12.A1 Distribution of fiscal consolidation programs 364
12.A2 Distribution of spending- and revenue-based consolidation programs 365

Downloaded from https://www.cambridge.org/core. UNIVERSIDAD AUTONOMA METROPOLITANA, on 15 Nov 2026 at 11:32:28, subject to the Cambridge Core terms of use, available at https://www.cambridge.org/core/terms. https://doi.org/10.1017/9781009496810

12.A3 Distribution of different types of consolidation 365
13.1 Leader changes in social democratic and conservative/Christian democratic parties 373
13.2 The polling effects of leadership changes and the frequency of leadership changes 384
13.3 Polling effects of leader changes across party families 385
13.4 The electoral effects of leadership changes and the frequency of leadership changes 387
13.5 The electoral effects of leadership changes and the frequency of leadership changes conditional on party family 388

Downloaded from https://www.cambridge.org/core. UNIVERSIDAD AUTONOMA METROPOLITANA, on 15 Nov 2026 at 11:32:28, subject to the Cambridge Core terms of use, available at https://www.cambridge.org/core/terms. https://doi.org/10.1017/9781009496810