Notes on Contributors

Sean McMeekin is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of California, Berkeley, working on a dissertation entitled 'Münzenberg: Rise and Fall of a Communist Tycoon, 1917–1940'. He is the author of 'From Beaumarchais to Chénier: the "droits d'auteur" and the fall of the Comédie Française, 1777–1791', in Studies on Voltaire and the Eighteenth Century (1999).

Peter Deli is a lecturer in history at the University of Hong Kong. He previously worked on French history and problems of international communism in Paris and at St Antony's College, Oxford. He has contributed articles to Survey and the Journal of Contemporary History. At present he is writing a book on the contemporary French intelligentsia.

Johnny N. Laursen is a senior lecturer in the Department of History, Aarhus University, Denmark. He has published on Denmark's European policy, Nordic co-operation, the European Coal and Steel Community, EFTA, and the Weimar Republic and postwar economic internationalism. His main areas of research are interwar German history, Scandinavian postwar history and the history of European integration.

Thorsten B. Olesen is a senior lecturer in the Department of History, Aarhus University, Denmark. His publications as co-author include Fascismen i italiens historie. Brud og kontinuitet Italiens historie efter 1800 (1986) and Gronland under den kolde krig. Dansk og amerikansk sikkerhedspolitik 1945–1968, 2 vols. (1997); he is also the editor of Interdependence versus Integration. Denmark, Scandinavia and Western Europe, 1945–1960 (1995). His main areas of research are fascism during the interwar period and topics related to Danish security policy and European integration.

Jeffrey Giauque completed his doctorate, 'Upheaval in the Alliance: the Atlantic Powers and the Reorganization of Western Europe, 1955–63', at Ohio State University in 1999. He is currently Visiting Assistant Professor of Twentieth Century European History and International Studies at Miani (Ohio) University.

Contemporary European History, 9, 1 (2000), pp. 181–182 © 2000 Cambridge University Press
Printed in the United Kingdom

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777300001090 Published online by Cambridge University Press

Frances M. B. Lynch is Reader in French Studies at the University of Westminster. Recent publications include France and the International Economy: From Vichy to the Treaty of Rome (1997) and with Alan Milward et al., The Frontier of National Sovereignty: History and Theory, 1945–1992 (1993). She is currently working on de Gaulle's economic, financial and industrial policies as well as a history of fiscal harmonisation in the European Union.

Jim Tomlinson is Professor of Government at Brunel University. His publications include Democratic Socialism and Economic Policy: the Atlee years (1997) and Government and the Enterprise since 1900 (1994).

Bernard Voutat is assistant lecturer in the Department of Political Science at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland. He is particularly interested in the epistemology of political sociology, social relationships between the sexes and the construction of national identity. His publications include 'La construction des identités territoriales comme enjeu de lutte politique', in Heinz-Gerhard Haupt, Michael G. Müller and Stuart Woolf, eds., Regional and National Identities in Europe in the XIXth and XXth centuries (1998), 287–309.

Marc Lazar is Professor of History at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris. His many publications include (with Stéphane Courtois) Histoire du Parti communiste français (1995) and Maisons rouges. Les partis communistes français et italien de la Libération à nos jours. He is a member of the Editorial Board of Contemporary European History.

Megan Koreman was formerly Associate Professor of History at Texas Tech University and is the author of The Expectation of Justice: France 1944–1946 (1999) and various articles including 'The Collaborator's Penance. The Local Purge 1944–45', Contemporary European History, Vol. 6, no. 1 (1997).

Alexander Hill is a research student of Peterhouse, Cambridge. He is currently in the final stages of completing his Ph.D. thesis entitled 'Between Two Fires – Local Responses to German Rule and the Soviet Partisan Movement on the Russian Territory Occupied by the German Army Group North 1941–1944'.

https://doi.org/10.1017/S0960777300001090 Published online by Cambridge University Press