Contributors to this Issue

MARGARET LAVINIA ANDERSON is Professor of History at the University of California, Berkeley (Berkeley, CA 94720; e-mail: mlavinia@socrates.berkeley.edu). Her most recent publication is Practicing Democracy: Elections and Political Culture in Imperial Germany, which was published by Princeton University Press in June 2000. She is currently a Fellow at the American Academy in Berlin.

EDWARD ROSS DICKINSON teaches modern German and European history at Victoria University in Wellington, New Zealand/Te Whare Wananga o te Upoko o te Ika a Maui (P. O. Box 600, Wellington, New Zealand). He is the author of The Politics of German Child Welfare: From the Empire to the Federal Republic (Harvard University Press, 1996). He is presently working on a book on debates about sexual morality in Germany between 1880 and 1935.

JOHN ALEXANDER WILLIAMS received his doctorate from the University of Michigan and is now Assistant Professor of History at Bradley University (Peoria, IL 61625; e-mail: johnw@bumail.bradley.edu). He has published articles on organized hiking and conservationism in early twentieth-century Germany and is currently writing a book entitled "Returning to Nature in Interwar Germany: Hikers, Conservationists, and Nudists Between Democracy and Fascism, 1918–1935."

https://doi.org/10.1163/1569161015297974 Published online by Cambridge University Press