THE LINGUISTIC SOCIETY OF AMERICA

The LSA was founded in 1924 for the advancement of the scientific study of language. The Society serves its nearly 7,000 personal and institutional members through scholarly meetings, publications, and special activities designed to advance the discipline. An interest in linguistics is the only requirement for membership.

Membership is for a calendar year. It includes the quarterly journal Language (March, June, September, December) and the LSA Bulletin (issued a minimum of four times per year, one issue a membership directory). Members have the privilege of submitting papers for publication in Language, may propose papers for the Annual Meeting, and may take advantage of reduced subscription rates to a number of linguistics journals (see other side).

The Society publishes the Directory of Programs in Linguistics in the United States and Canada on its website. Among its special educational activities are the Linguistic Institutes held every other summer in odd-numbered years and co-sponsored by a host university. Inaugurated in 1928, these Institutes provide intensive training in applied and theoretical linguistics on the graduate and undergraduate level. LSA student members may apply for tuition fellowships; visiting scholars are welcome.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED

This list acknowledges the receipt of recent works (except offprints of single articles) that appear to bear on the scientific study of language. The receipt of individual books cannot be separately acknowledged, and no book can be returned to the publisher. Note especially that, by accepting a book, the Editor implies no promise that it will be reviewed in this journal. Reviews are printed as circumstances permit, and copies are sent to the publishers of the works reviewed.
