Cambridge Prisms is a series of journals dedicated to addressing real-world challenges. Global Mental Health is one of the titles in the series.

Global Mental Health explores the broad application of 'the global point of view' of mental health issues. The field of 'global mental health' is still emerging, reflecting a movement of advocacy and associated research driven by an agenda to remedy long-standing treatment gaps and disparities in care, access, and capacity. The journal seeks to cultivate and grow this emerging distinct discipline of 'global mental health', and the new knowledge and paradigms that should come from it.

Global Mental Health invites contributions from a range of disciplines, stakeholders, and research methods to achieve its aim. The Editors reflect this diversity, with expertise in areas outside of the traditional 'mental health' silos that must be included to make global mental health truly 'global' in nature.

THE SCOPE COVERS, BUT IS NOT LIMITED TO:

- Interventions
- Etiology
- Policy & Systems
- Teaching & Learning
- Measurement
- Prevention
- Quality of Care
- Human Rights
